MEMORANDUM FOR: Chief, Arms Control Intelligence Staff
FROM: Director of Central Intelligence
SUBJECT: SALT II (U)

I note in this morning's paper that Senator Fulbright recommends a lame duck session of the Senate in November-December to ratify the SALT II. If such action were taken, could the Senate approach SALT II as it now stands, or would it be necessary to make some amendments because of the time interval? In short, is it possible the Soviets would accept the Treaty in its present form if it were enacted as late as the end of this year? (C)
